Episode 26: September 10, 2020, 3:00pm ET via Zoom.

America's upcoming November 3 election has been thrown into unprecedented chaos by COVID-19, political warfare, massive distrust, and a flurry of accusations from all sides. Questions about mass mail voting, postal interference, violence in our cities, Republican allegations of fraud, and the Democratic Party's assertion that their candidate should under no circumstances concede on election night means uncertainty, chaos, and conflict right through the final tally of election results. Famed litigator Alan Dershowitz, constitutional law expert Nathan Lewin, who has appeared before the United States Supreme Court 28 times, high-profile crisis manager Juda Engelmayer, and Professor Jordan Carr Peterson, School of Public and International Affairs at North Carolina State University, join Edwin to examine the controversies and consequences.
